Education – Chronological Listing by Date of Professional and Formal Training

I’ve list several different types and styles for you to look over

- #1. You should have a short concise listing for your appraisals
- #2. A Longer More Complete and Detailed Listing for when you have to appear in court

There is another style and type other appraisers use and it is called Curriculum Vitae (CV)

A lot of professionals such a doctors and other who are called into court and have it entered into the court records as it list everything in a specific order.

To me, it’s in Latin so only smart people use and speak Latin, or so I’m told but it is a bit much and Elitist and Snobbish but it looks good on paper and in court documents and beside when you testify in court you should be charging an arm and a leg as well.

You can go online and use a CV Builder and make your Own Curriculum Vitae so you can look well refined and educated as well.

This is the Cut-Down Short Version I put in my appraisals and limit to One (1) page or less
