2019 – Up-Date #1 - The (2014) EGL Diamond Grading Report Scam & Scandal
How this Scam & Scandal still has a Ripple Effect, Even Today
And will continue into the Future for Decades, if not more

As you have just recently read about the 2014-EGL Diamond Grading Scam and Scandal I’m about to tell you about the Ripple Effects of this Scam and Scandal that broke in print in November of 2014 and now it is 2019, Five (5) Years Later

These diamonds and diamond grading reports continue to this day, to financially hurt and harm the consumers, Diamond owners, in yet another way.

I’m talking about having your jewelry re-appraised and insured against loss or damage.

If they were over-appraised the first time around which more than likely were.

Then you can bet a dime to a doughnut-hole that if they are re-appraised by the same store and same appraiser as before they will continue to over appraise it hoping you won’t know what they did to you in the first place and so they will want the BIG LIE and BIG FRAUD to continue without your knowledge.

If a crappy, uneducated so-called Schlock appraiser who is also dis-honest and Un-Ethical will re-do and re-appraise that Fraudulent Graded Diamond and Re-Value it based on GIA Cut, Color and Clarity Price Lists and not what the REAL Cut, Color and Clarity grade is if GIA would grade it and once more over-value it which in turn causes the Insured to pay way more in insurance premiums.

They just Financially Harmed you and they also continued the Fraud by not fully disclosing this Fraudulent EGL Lab Report and you should instantly take the so-called appraiser to court and sue them for Harming You Financially and more than likely that so-called appraiser was or is working for or in cahoots with the jewelry store who sold you this over graded diamond in the first place and if so you can also take them to court and sue them as well as they have more assets and more finically positioned so you can get more out of your lawsuit against both the so-called appraiser and the guilty jewelry store all at the same time.

In fact, you can have the diamond in question removed and sent off to GIA to have them grade it properly and then with the report in hand you can then sue everyone involved until the cows come home.

But make sure it is all fully documented by first having a full suite of photomicrographs in its original setting that clearly show the inclusions and laser inscription if it has one and also have the entire process videotaped, showing and proving each step of the process so there can be no excuse or any plausible rebuttal to what you did and how you did it.

Every Insurance Company in the USA that offers and provide Personal Property Insurance, as in Un-Scheduled, Scheduled and Agreed Upon Value Insurance for Gems & Jewelry better be hiring a Professional Group of Fully Accredited Gemological Appraisers in their Underwriting and Claims Departments as well to protect against needless lawsuits that could of been prevented during the Underwriting Process before a policy was cleared to be insurable.

Just say'in

(I'm not a Lawyer and therefore I can't give Legal advice but I'm just giving you information which you can then talk and discuss with an attorney of your choice on these issues that need to be legally addressed and legally resolved by all parties involved, in a court of Law, with an impartial set of impaneled jurors, who more than likely are also jewelry buying consumers, as well, to definitively decide Just Who Screwed Who and for How Much ***)

The Craziest Part of all of this
There are more Laws, Rules, and Regulations, Protecting the Consumer Against Used Car Dealers, Their Salesmen and their Used Cars, than there is on New Diamonds & Jewelry Purchases

Let that Sink in for a while

Pretty Crazy, Huh!?!?!?!?!?
